JAPANESE PREMIER FAVORS REDUCTION OF NAVAL FORCES

Not Looking for Radical Changes to Be Made Suddenly, but Declares Objection to Ratio Principle as Damaging to Self-Respect—Expecting Success for Conference

TOKIO, July 31 (AP).—Keishuke Okada, new Premier of Japan, whose viewpoint on naval questions was awaited eagerly by the world, said today he believes navies should be reduced to the smallest proportions possible.

But, he added, Japan is dissatisfied with the arbitrary 5-5-3 ratio fixed by the Washington Treaty of 1922 as Japan's proportion of capital ships in relation to Great Britain and the United States. Whether the Washington Treaty is to be abrogated has not yet been decided, he said.

HURTS SELF-RESPECT
"I cannot favor the present ratio principle in naval limitation, which hurts the self-respect of certain nations," said the Premier, who was called to the head of the Government from a long career as a naval officer. His observations were made at his first meeting with foreign newspaper correspondents.

"I hope some better method than the ratio principle can be discovered, but at present I am not in a position to make definite suggestions on the subject," Okada said. "Whether Japan should abrogate the Washington Treaty is still under consideration, but has not yet been settled."

MUST REDUCE BURDEN
"To reduce the burden of taxation borne by the peoples of the world, naval armaments must be reduced to the smallest proportions possible," the Premier continued. "Such naval limitation must come from reduction on the part of the most heavily armed nations."

MOB OF MINERS STONES POLICE

Seven Non-Strikers Thrown Into Pond in Naval Scotia—Several Injured

STETTARTON, N.S., Aug. 1 (CP).—Striking Acadia Coal Company miners went on the rampage early today, stoning police officers and breaking windows on the Allan shaft property. Constable J. Neilson, returning from the Albion pit, was struck by a stone and knocked unconscious. The first outbreak of violence occurred yesterday afternoon, when strikers mobbed working men returning from the Albion pit. Several non-strikers were injured and seven were thrown into a nearby pond.

POLICE ARE STONED
Early this morning pickets sought four miners on the Allan shaft property and when Mounted Police stood guard over the wanted men, stones began to fly. A police car was battered, but the four miners were escorted safely to their homes. When the police returned, the pickets were stoning the collectors' wash house and the company office, while a crowd of 500 men, women and children watched with interest. The authorities returned just in time to prevent a group of men from upsetting another car, but stones were directed toward the officers and Constable Neilson went down with a bad cut below one eye.

Dominion Government Pays Compensation to Old Pensioners Tri-Bank Personnel

OTTAWA, July 31 (CP).—Payment of compensation to former members of the Canadian Pension Tribunal and the old Federal Appeal Board, whose services were terminated by legislative action in 1931 and 1933, respectively, went forward today. Thirteen former officials of these pension bodies receiving compensation amount in the aggregate to $100,000.

Those to whom this "windfall" comes are G. B. Reilly, C. W. E. Meach, Dr. B. L. Wickware and John Roy, of the old Pension Tribunal Board, and Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas Morrison, Colonel L. E. MacKenzie, Colonel Norman T. MacLeod, Colonel J. T. C. Gagnon, Captain J. I. Grover, Major J. P. MacKay, Captain R. C. MacKenzie, Colonel C. W. Peck, V.C., and Major Leo St. C. Ward, of the Pension Tribunal.

The cheques were issued by the Finance Department today. In some cases the amount of compensation runs as high as $10,000. The money being paid is in compensation for the unexpired portion of their term.

HUNDREDS ON LEAKING SHIP

Lives of 500 Are Imperiled When Vessel Crashes on Aleutian Rocks

SEATTLE, July 31 (AP).—The cannery ship Otego, which crashed into a rock, today, in Bristol Bay, Alaska, imperiling the lives of more than 500 persons aboard, was reached tonight by two coastguard cutters, which began conveying the stricken vessel toward Dutch Harbor. The two cutters, the Ewing and Barnum, were out of Dutch Harbor. Another Government vessel, the coast and geodetic survey ship Surveyor, also raced to the aid of the Otego, which struck rocks along the north shore of the Aleutian Islands, in the early hours today. The radio message to the coast-guard gave no further details.

HAS MANY PASSENGERS
The Otego has between 500 and 600 persons aboard, mostly cannery tenders, and a large cargo of canned salmon.

Messages to the owners, Libby, McNeil & Libby, disclosed the belief of the captain, Max Darskile, that he anticipated no danger on the way to Dutch Harbor. From the vessel's position when she hit the rocks, as shown in messages to the owners, she was off the north shore of Unimak Island, and about 125 miles from Dutch Harbor. She was able to back off under her own power, and proceeded toward Dutch Harbor, before aid was received. The weather was fair and she was not believed in serious danger, the owners were advised here. The Victoria, of the Alaska Steamship Company, is en route from Seattle, to meet the Otego at Dutch Harbor to take off the passengers.

Expansion of Credit To Provide Work Is Urged by Premiers

Conference at Ottawa Concludes With Provinces Arranging to Receive Monthly Contributions From Federal Government for Relief

OTTAWA, July 31 (CP).—British Columbia, Manitoba and Ontario Premiers took the opportunity, at the final plenary session of the Dominion-Provincial Conference, late tonight, to urge upon the Dominion Government the necessity of expanding credit, so that work, instead of direct relief payments, might be provided to end Canada's unemployment problem.

Following a series of separate conferences, in which a committee of the Cabinet council arranged with the provinces individually for relief only, compared with direct relief only, the full conference again assembled for final observations. The final adjournment came shortly before midnight.

PLANS OF AUSTRIAN PUTSCH SAID TO HAVE BEEN FOUND ON MAN FROM GERMAN SIDE

Fresh Imputation Made of Germany's Implication in Plot to Overthrow Dollfuss Government—Nazis Executed for Assassination Reported Dying With "Heil Hitler" on Their Lips

Winkler Says Heimwehr Had Plot for Revolution

VIENNA, July 31 (AP).—Austrian interest was pointed anew toward Germany tonight, following the hanging of two Nazis, held responsible for the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss, with official publication of a deciphered document purporting to show plans to overthrow the Austrian Government, were matured in the Reich.

Propaganda Chief Walter Adam, in the name of the Cabinet, announced over the radio that plans for the Nazi putsch, including the possibility of civil war, were found in the shoes of a man arrested at Kollerschlag, Upper Austria.

VARIOUS INTERPRETATIONS
The fact that the Cabinet made the document public was held by some to indicate that no definite peace was envisaged. Others interpreted it as a step to force the German Government to demonstrate its lack of complicity by acting against Austrian exiles now in Germany.

The two Nazis accused of implication in the killing of Dollfuss, and hanged in the prison yard almost six days to the hour after the Chancellor's slaying, were said, in an official account of the execution, to have died with the words "Heil Hitler!" on their lips. One, Franz Hoizweber, convicted of high treason as leader of the putsch in which Dollfuss died, also shouted, "I die for Germany!" it was reported officially. The other, Otto Planetta, former army staff sergeant, said he killed the Chancellor.

KIDNAP PLAN IS ALLEGED

Five Ontario Men Involved in Conspiracy to Kidnap Packing Magnate

TORONTO, July 31 (CP).—Tonight, Provincial Police placed five men under arrest and revealed an alleged conspiracy to kidnap James Stanley McLean, president of Canada Packers, Limited, and to hold him for $100,000 ransom. Police claimed the men planned to kidnap McLean and take him by auto to a spot in the vicinity of the Humber River, near where he would be held in a specially-prepared tunnel under a cabin in a tourist camp. They said excavation work had started a half-mile west of the Humber. Planks used to haul earth were found. It was alleged, and picks and shovels were found against cabin walls. There was considerable excavation work done, it was charged.

PLANNED ABDUCTION
Mimico police said they believed the men planned to steal McLean at his Toronto home and proceed by auto to Weston and from there, by side roads, to the auto camp. Three of the prisoners are held on a joint charge of conspiring to commit an indictable offence, namely kidnapping. They are Harry Leslie, forty; James Leslie, thirty-six (brothers), and Frank Wood, thirty-three, unemployed, of New Toronto. The Leslie brothers are proprietors of a tourist camp on the Lakeshore Highway, and live in Toronto.

The two other men are held as Continued on Page 8, Column 3

Prepares for Air Service To Dominion

LONDON, July 31 (CP).—Tenders for a fleet of twenty multi-engine flying boats, to be used in the projected England-Canada air service, have been submitted to Imperial Airways, according to the air correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, who says the scheme "is well advanced."

The flying boats would accommodate from thirty to fifty persons. In the winter, the correspondent says, the route would be by Bermuda and in the summer, by Iceland and Greenland.

Combined Tax Bill Terrific Now B.C. Inquiry Is Warned

Provincial and Civic Imposts at $55,000,000 Per Annum, Union of B.C. Municipalities Reminds Weir Schools Survey Commission

WITH provincial and municipal combined expenditures at around $55,000,000 yearly, it had become a question of how much British Columbia could actually afford to spend for education or other public services, officials of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities stressed before the Weir Schools Commission, yesterday.

The general survey committee adjourned at noon, arranging to meet next on August 27; the advisory committee to meet meanwhile to sift some of the arguments presented by teacher, trustee, council and other bodies.

In closing submissions Mayor David Leeming, Victoria, and R. P. Blaylock, Oak Bay, spoke for the municipalities. Mayor Leeming said the fundamental question before the

NO AGREEMENT REGARDING WAR

South African Ministers Deny Any Secret Understanding With Britain

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa, July 31 (CP via Reuters).—Prime Minister J. T. M. Hertzog and Onward Pirow, Minister of Railways and Defence, tonight, stressed with emphasis a secret agreement existed between South Africa and the United Kingdom, regarding the union's participation in any future war.

The ministers were speaking at a meeting of the Orange Free State National Congress. They declared the decision to go to war would rest entirely with the South African Parliament and the people.

The Prime Minister emphasized what he regarded as the importance of maintaining friendship with Britain and the other Dominions. He said in part:

"From the moment that the British Government declared willingness to grant the Dominions the fullest independence, I determined that only one policy should therefore be followed by South Africa, namely to extend a maximum of friendship, good will and co-operation to Great Britain and the other Dominions in a spirit of international friendship and fraternity."

"That is the only policy that can be followed by a wise Government in South Africa. This co-operation will continue as long as the people will it."

ADJOURNED UNTIL AUTUMN SESSION

Parliament Takes Holiday After Prolonged Session of Legislation—Resume in October

LONDON, July 31 (CP).—Both Houses of Parliament adjourned today until October 1, unless the Lord Chancellor and the Speaker decide the public interest requires an earlier reassembly.

During the part of the session just over, Parliament passed almost fifty public bills. Those left for the autumn include the Betting and Lotteries Bill and a measure designed to curb and punish persons inciting disaffection among His Majesty's forces.

When the House of Commons resumes its session in the autumn most of the outstanding business will be cleared up in a fortnight or three weeks, after which the new session will be opened at once.

The chief issue before the next session will be that of a new constitution for India.

Income Tax Should Be Broadened Says Mayor of Victoria

Rise in Cost of Education Makes Burden Far Too Great for Real Property Owner Alone to Bear, His Worship Contends

"EDUCATION can no longer be carried on at the expense of the real property owner. The income tax should be expanded by the Provincial Government to include all incomes, both salaries and profit on investments, so as to place the cost of education on a more equitable basis," Mayor David Leeming stated yesterday, at the City Hall.

He added that municipalities had decreased 748 from $412 in 1920 to $164 in 1934.

The cost of grade schools in 1920 amounted to $219,158, while in 1933 the cost was $222,613, or an increase of $3,455.

"These figures are exclusive of capital charges, and represent the net cost, the idea being to show what the operative cost of education is," the Mayor explained.

"This we find a decrease of 15 per cent in the number of pupils attending school, and a 6 per cent increase in the cost," the Mayor stated, adding that this anomaly was somewhat puzzling.

The cost per pupil in the graded schools in 1920, he said, was $44.2 compared with $52.79 in 1933, or an increase per pupil of $8.17.

To illustrate his argument, he took the case of Victoria, and showed how the number of pupils attending elementary schools had

MASTER DIVER FROM WINDOW

Captain Planchich, of Seiner Umatilla, Did Not See Battleship Arizona

SEATTLE, July 31 (AP).—The ramming of the purse seiner Umatilla in the Strait of Juan de Fuca last Thursday by the battleship Arizona was described today by the master of the fishing craft, Lucas Planchich, before a naval court of inquiry aboard the Arizona in harbor here.

Two members of the Umatilla's crew died in the accident. "I was at the wheel," Planchich said, "we had a lookout on the boat and visibility was clear."

"A few minutes before we were rammed, I looked back and saw the lights of the Emblem and Reiston, two scuners that were following us. I never saw the Arizona. When she hit us, the Umatilla listed sharply to port. I knocked out a wheelhouse window and dived. I was afraid she would roll over on me and I dived again. I was pulled out by the crew of the Emblem."

Arnold Halson Dockton, engineer of the Umatilla, also declared visibility was clear before the seiner was struck. The attempt to carry out the Umatilla's crew to the scene of the accident aboard the Arizona was abandoned. Members will drive to Neah Bay, where the Umatilla's hull is beached, to save the expense of running the battleship.

EXPANSION OF CREDIT URGED BY PREMIERS

House of Commons. But the argument advanced within the conference chamber were not known, since all deliberations were held behind closed doors.

The majority of the Premiers and ministers, however, expressed themselves as willing to consider the increased burden, and there was no argument against the claim of the Prime Minister that relief was constitutionally a Provincial problem.

A spokesman for the Dominion Government described the new attitude of the Federal authorities toward relief administration as follows:

Commencing August 1, and up to and including March 31, 1935, on which date the Relief Act of 1933 expires, the Dominion Government will give grants-in-aid, payable in monthly instalments to the Provinces, to assist them to discharge their constitutional responsibilities for the relief of neoclassical unemployed persons within their areas.

The amount of such grants will be arranged between the Dominion and each Province, and will give recognition, on the one hand, to the conditions still prevailing in the various parts of Canada as regards unemployment and ability of the Provinces to meet these conditions; and, on the other hand, to the urgent necessity of bringing about a reduction in public expenditures for direct relief administration on the part of local and provincial authorities, and as a result of the generally improving conditions throughout the Dominion.

In addition, the Government undertakes:

SINGLE HOMELESS

1. To continue its present provision for single homeless unemployed men in need of relief in Federal-operated camps, up to the authorized maximum of 26,173 men, until March 31, 1935.

2. To maintain the agreements under the Relief Act, 1933, that have been entered into with the several Provinces respecting the Trans-Canada Highway.

3. To carry out existing agreements in respect of the settlement of persons in need of relief upon the land.

4. To continue the existing agreements in respect of farm placements.

5. To take into consideration the extraordinary circumstances that may require special financial assistance to Provincial Governments, in connection with the movement of livestock and fodder, and the provision of seed grain in distressed areas.

PUBLIC WORKS PLAN

6. That the programme for the construction of public works, initiated by the Dominion Government, will not be affected by the provision of the grants-in-aid of Provincial expenditure for relief purposes contemplated.

7. That the question of Dominion co-operation in public works undertaken by Provincial Governments for the relief of unemployment will be examined by the Governments directly concerned in each case.

Premier T. D. Pattullo, of British Columbia, led the debate, tonight, in favor of increasing credit so some progress might be made toward eliminating unemployment. Canada had been subsisting in capital expenditures on railroads, highways, public works and building for a quarter of a century, he said. Now, with revenues cut in half and capital expenditure practically at a standstill, there was no hope of getting away from unemployment. Inflationary experiments in Canada so far had been successful, Mr. Pattullo said.

Mayor of New Orleans Arms Policemen to Resist National Guard

NEW ORLEANS, July 31 (AP).—Shortly before midnight, Mayor T. S. Walmisley ordered 400 armed policemen on duty at police headquarters to resist a report attempted by Senator Huey P. Long and his state administration followers to seize the police department with some 500 National Guardsmen mobilized at Jackson Barracks.

Rumors flew over the city that the police would be ordered in the early morning hours, while other reports gave the time as noon tomorrow, when the holly-contested New Orleans Police Commission would take office under the act passed at the recent session of the State Legislature. City administration leaders obtained a restraining order today to prevent the new board taking office on the grounds of illegality.

The possibility of a clash between troops and police gave the political dispute in the city administrative action, headed by Mayor Walmisley, and the State Administration, dominated by Senator Long, a most serious turn.

COAST SHIPPING MOVING AGAIN

In the harbor here, fifty-one deep-water vessels were being worked by union stevedores, and the waterfront was the scene of booming business.

Similar activity began in other ports, when the union workers again began handling cargoes.

TRUCKS AT PORTLAND

While sixteen vessels were being loaded at Portland, Ore., scattered violence broke out in that city as an aftermath of the strike. Union seamen beat and routed several non-union crew members. Longshoremen refused to work cargo on three vessels on which union seamen were employed. Police were called out several times to prevent or end fights between union and non-union workers. All questions involved in the disputes were submitted to the President's Labor-Merchant's Board in San Francisco.

BRITAIN WORRIED

LONDON, July 31 (AP).—Official British spokesmen today with unconcealed anxiety on the possible outcome of the illness of President von Hindenburg, of Germany.

"He is to Germany what King George is to England and King Victor Emmanuel is to Italy," was the opinion of a high authoritative source, who said von Hindenburg's death would be a severe blow to Germany and to the whole world.

"His loss would be even more serious politically," the spokesman added, "because the question of who would replace him is not automatically answered."

PARIS CONCERNED

PARIS, July 31 (AP).—French officials, speaking privately, tonight made no effort to conceal their concern over the European situation, owing to the Austrian situation and the grave problems which the death of President von Hindenburg might create in Germany.

The Government here is in something of a dilemma over the determination of Premier Mussolini of Italy to use his army in Austria if necessary to maintain the independence and stability of government there.

celior without intending to do so and began to speak in court.

WAITING FOR NEWS

Another thing that turned attention here upon Germany was what was believed to be the imminent death of President von Hindenburg. The official Austrian news agency said the open hour later than usual, waiting for news of his condition.

The man described by Adam as having carried plans of the Austrian putsch was said to have had a German passport in the name of Franz Heel. The Nazis involved were not named, but were referred to as "our people."

Adam said Heel admitted receiving the documents in Passau, on the Bavarian side of the border, and agreeing to deliver them to Linn for $100.

PARTIALLY DECIPHERED

According to a document which was partially deciphered, he said the words "Summer festival" were taken from the German constitution, and the words "German people" were taken from the Nazi oath.

A scarcely less sensational revelation came from Franz Winkler, former Vice-President in the Dollfus regime, interviewed in Czechoslovakia. He said a radical plan to overthrow the Dollfus dictatorship already had been worked out by the Paelet Heimwehr, when the Nazi putsch upset all reckoning.

Holzeber and Planetta were hanged after the prescribed three hours following their conviction by the court-martial.

Their counsel made a plea for clemency, which was rejected by President Miklas.

Captain of Greek Ship Tells of Soviet War Activities There

NEW WESTMINSTER, July 31.—Attracting considerable attention on the waterfront because she is of Greek registry and also because of her lengthy name, the Ss. Ekaton-tachos Dracoulis is loading a cargo of lumber at the B.C.E.R. Dock. The freighter, under time charter to the Yamashita Shipping Company of Japan, is loading for Sydney, Australia, and is under command of Captain S. Theophilatos.

The freighter is owned by Dracoulis & Company, of Ithaca, in the Ionian Isles, a name famous in Greek mythology as the home of Ulysses. She is one of a fleet of seven ships operated by that company.

During all of June the ship was in Vladivostok, having discharged there a full cargo of grain and steel rails, loaded at Odessa, on the Black Sea. The grain rails were transported for the Soviet Government.

LABOR HEARD

Charles Chivers, on behalf of the Victoria Trades and Labor Council, submitted a brief asking the Government to take steps to assume the entire cost and control of education; to be financed out of a graded income tax, with exemptions of incoastal areas; consolidation of school areas; abolition of cadet training in favor of physical training, and lower costs on textbooks were also advocated.

Mrs. A. Jones, of the Parent-Teacher Federation, presented a petition of free textbook distribution, urging as too onerous, costs of $10 and up for books required in higher grades and high school.

Uncertainty Veils Fate Of Canoeists

After desultory discussion on minor points, the committee adjourned.

NAME EXPLAINED

Explaining the name borne by the freighter, Captain Theophilatos says that the first part of the lengthy appellation is the Greek term for an army rank, given to that of captain and colonel, between the commander of 100 troops. The latter part is the surname of the owners. The ship was built at Stockton-on-Tees in 1919, and was formerly known as the Consholiff. She registers 58 tons gross, and carries a crew of thirty-two officers and men.

Fishermen Report Run of Sockeye

SEATTLE, July 31 (AP).—An unexpectedly large run of Fraser River sockeye salmon has appeared in the sea off Cape Flattery, C. E. McDowell, prominent Seattle banker, said he was informed by Neah Bay fishermen friends.

The run is apparently not only exceedingly large, but also consists of fish of a high average size, he said. It may correspond to the "break" run of 1930, a year termed by State and Federal fisheries experts as a "dominant year."

CHINESE GOVERNMENT SEIZES GOLD FIELD REVEALED BY RAINS

CANTON, China, July 31 (AP).—The National Government, today, dispatched troops, armed with machine-guns, to the Yanking district, near Kongmoon, to drive off the villagers from the local gold diggings. During recent torrential rains the hillside was washed out, revealing free gold.

COMBINED TAX BILL HIGH INQUIRY TOLD

Increase in the net cost at the Victoria High School amounted to 81 per cent, with a per pupil cost increased by 13.8 per cent. Meanwhile there had been a direct shrinkage in the per capita assessments within the city, in the same period. In the face of a real financial crisis, it was no longer a question of what was desirable, but of what could be afforded, Mayor Leeming declared.

POPE TO BREAK OLD PRECEDENT

VATICAN CITY, July 31 (AP).—Pope Pius, this week, will break a precedent of sixty years by leaving the Vatican for a Summer vacation at Castel Gandolfo, it was revealed today by church authorities. The Summer residence of the head of the church is high in the Alban Hills, near Rome. The Pope's departure is to take place on Friday or Saturday.

French Millers Defy Government

PARIS, July 31 (AP).—The millers of France today openly defied the Government's efforts to regulate the price of wheat.

In a letter to Premier Gaston Doumergue, the National Association of Millers said it will refuse to abide by the law which fixes the price of harvested wheat at $2.35 a bushel and the coming crop at $1.95.

MUST SPEND LESS

"We must draw in our horns and spend less, because we have not got it to spend. I am going to suggest that the emphasis in this inquiry should not be laid on new sources of revenue, but a change in the basis of how we get that revenue. Millions have been spent on roads that will go to waste unless they are kept up. There are many other important services, some of which can be just simply shut off," Mr. Blundy said.

A punitive income tax would drive wealth from the province, and would be as oppressive on business as any other form of taxation. A corporate tax could be applied best through national channels, and corporations already were heavily taxed in Canada.

There was a call, and need, for reduction of taxation on land. The improvement levy should be compulsory to a certain level. Meanwhile, economies would have to be made in all public services, including education. Repugnant as the idea of student fees, some suggest

NOT COMPULSORY

Arising on a point of explanation, Hon. Dr. G. M. Weir stressed the fact that compulsory education in British Columbia ends at the age of fifteen. Between that and eighteen years of age, he said, the non-fee system applied, but there was no such thing as compulsory education after fifteen years of age.

School law board school boards to provide facilities for students up to sixteen years of age, the municipal delegation observed. For a while the committee debated the subject of over-age students and non-fee costs.

LABOR HEARD

Charles Chivers, on behalf of the Victoria Trades and Labor Council, submitted a brief asking the Government to take steps to assume the entire cost and control of education; to be financed out of a graded income tax, with exemptions of incoastal areas; consolidation of school areas; abolition of cadet training in favor of physical training, and lower costs on textbooks were also advocated.

Mrs. A. Jones, of the Parent-Teacher Federation, presented a petition of free textbook distribution, urging as too onerous, costs of $10 and up for books required in higher grades and high school.

FEVERISH ACTIVITY

Vladivostok is the scene of feverish activity because of strained relations between Russia and Japan, Captain Theophilatos says. While he was there, there were fifteen other vessels in port, all of which were also unloading grain and rails for the Soviet regime. The rails were for the Trans-Siberian Railway, which is being hastily double-tracked across Siberia by the Soviet authorities, presumably because of the danger of war in the Far East. The grain consisted chiefly of oats believed destined to feed the horses of the great concentration of mounted Russian troops in the vicinity of Vladivostok. The residents of the city fear that a war between Russia and Japan cannot long be delayed.

APPEALS TO CLUB

Only by constantly guarding against such plagues and new epidemics may Canada and the world keep history from repeating itself, the speaker warned. He called upon the club members to assist in the work of educating the people to smelt, and the utmost caution should be taken to protect these against disease microbes, the speaker declared.

Adanacs Are Beaten

VANCOUVER, July 31 (CP).—New Westminster Adanacs went down to defeat against the Young Frodoes Blue Birds, 18-7, at the Forum tonight, in an inter-city box lacrosse meet.

Blue Birds took the lead in the first quarter by a 3-2 score, and kept the pace for the rest of the game. The score at the end of the second period found the Frodoes boys leading, 12-2, and at the end of the third, 15-4.

Dr. A. M. Menzies Addresses Kiwanis Club on Cause and Prevention of Epidemics

As the people of the world are being brought closer together, the chances of disease spreading become greater, Dr. A. M. Menzies, Provincial Government epidemiologist, told members of the Kiwanis Club at luncheon, yesterday, in the Empress Hotel. Dr. Menzies spoke on the cause and prevention of epidemics.

Epidemics took toll of thousands during the ages, Dr. Menzies said, stating that the black death, in the seventeenth century, brought death to 25,000,000 persons in Europe; smallpox, in the eighteenth century, killed millions more, while the cholera accounted for the death of 5,000 Irish immigrants to Eastern Canada just prior to the nineteenth century. In Philadelphia, in 1793, when the city's population numbered 40,000, yellow fever killed off 3,500 inside of two months.

Lawn Bowling

Frank Holmes, runner-up in the Peace Cup this year, clinched his hold on the Renfrew Cup, emblem of the Burnside Lawn Bowling Club handicap singles, recently when he defeated Fred Harman in the final by a score of 21-18. The game was keenly contested throughout, with Harman, who had to give Holmes three, having the uphill fight, and it is evident from the final score that both men were very evenly matched. Both Holmes and Harman played a splendid game and gave a good exhibition of how the game should be played.

Tomorrow evening, the usual Thursday evening "lights" game for men and women bowlers of any club in Victoria will be played.

Next week, owing to the Greater Victoria tournament being held, there will be no play on the Burnside greens other than that arranged for by the tournament committee.

Through cuts in the skin, such as made by mosquitoes, fleas and lice, serious trouble can often ensue, Dr. Menzies warned. Other diseases often spread by too close physical contact between human beings, he added.

In conclusion, Dr. Menzies said much is being done to protect people from these diseases. The best method is immunization. He stated, pointing out that by the introduction of serums into the body a power of resistance is built up that wards off the disease.

W. D. Cameron, of Tokio, who was scheduled to address the club, was unable to do so, as he left the city unexpectedly, yesterday morning, on a business trip to Montreal.

The total length of the Amazon River, from the headwaters of the Ucayali, is about 3,900 miles.

Our Sun Still Has Few Million Years In Which to Shine

Dr. J. A. Pearce Gives Reassuring Information When Discussing "Stellar Evolution" Before Meeting of Astronomical Society

IF it continues to radiate at its present rate, our sun will fade out in seventeen million cillion years. But the probabilities are that it will not continue to radiate at its present rate, so that its life will be considerably longer, Dr. J. A. Pearce, of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory staff, told an audience of enthusiastic amateur students of astronomy, Monday night, at Victoria College.

"The modern atomic theory makes it practically certain that the sun draws upon subatomic energy for its supply. The sun, like all stars that shine, is converting its mass into energy, the rate varying with the star's age. At the present time the sun is radiating energy to a mass of 4,000,000 tons per second. In a year there are 31,000,000 seconds. A simple calculation shows that the sun will shine for at least two hundred and fifty million million years," the lecturer assured his listeners. When some gasped and some smiled Dr. Pearce recalled an incident that occurred at one of Sir Robert Ball's famous lectures on astronomy. Sir Robert had just remarked that there was no doubt the sun would eventually burn itself out. An old gentleman asked how long it would take, to which Sir Robert had replied two hundred million million years. The old gentleman sank back with a sigh of relief and said: "I thought you said two million years."

FOURTH OF SERIES
Dr. Pearce's lecture was on "Stellar Evolution," being the fourth in the summer series held under the auspices of the Victoria centre of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada. Boyd Brydon, the president, was in the chair, and prefaced the meeting by giving a brief synopsis of the previous three lectures. After the lecture was over observation work took place under the guidance of Mr. Peters and Miss Phoebe Riddell, using two three-inch refractor telescopes and one eight-inch reflector. Among the constellations viewed were Sagittarius, which at the present time is in very good position to observe, showing about a dozen magnificent clusters, the lecture some observation work took place, and Lars, now in the zenith of the heavens, with the bright star Vega.

BIG FIELD
In his lecture Dr. Pearce discussed several theories, but selected as the basis of present-day science that of the Danish astronomer, Hertzsprung, and the American, Russell. Illustrating his remarks by a number of photographs of spectra and lantern slides and diagrams, the speaker told the story of stellar evolution. The reason why Vega shines like a blue diamond, why Antares is red like a ruby, and why Capella glitters like a gem of golden hue, is because the stellar atmospheres are at different temperatures, varying from 2,000 degrees for the relatively cool red stars to 6,000 degrees for the yellow stars, 11,000 for the stars like Vega.

IDEA ACCEPTED
Dr. Pearce said that Helmholtz's idea that the sun's energy was maintained by contraction could not now be accepted, as it might be shown that the contraction of the sun from a size equivalent to the orbit of Neptune (5,500,000,000 miles) to its present size (864,000 miles) would only give a life of 18,000,000 years for the sun, too short for the demands of geology and biology.

In the course of the lecture there were also discussed the classification of stellar spectra, Lane's law that temperature varies inversely as the radius of a star; the stars nearer than fifteen light years; Eddington's mass luminosity law; the evolution of stars in binary systems, as exemplified by a Russell diagram for ten visual double stars; and the Russell diagram of the twenty brightest stars (giants) and the thirty-nine dwarf stars nearest the sun.

Four Events Listed on Programme for Today

Navy Week Activities Include Big Track and Field Meet at Macdonald Park, Yacht Club Sports and Two Social Affairs During Evening

Four events are listed on today's Navy Week programme, two of them being sports, in the afternoon, and the other two of a social character. The biggest event of the day is the official opening of Macdonald Park, with the grand naval sports programme.

This event will start at 1:30 p.m., and there will be a continuous flow of athletic events all afternoon, including sprints, long runs, relays, tug-of-war and other field and track sports. Refreshments will be served during the afternoon.

In addition to the navy, army and police forces in Victoria taking part, the visiting naval men from H.M.S. Norfolk will be supplemented by 150 officers and men from H.M.S. Danae, now at Comox.

Also in the afternoon, officers of H.M.S. Norfolk and the Royal Canadian Navy will participate in a Navy Week sports programme arranged by the Royal Victoria Yacht Club. In the evening there will be a dance aboard H.M.S. Norfolk, to which Government and civil dignitaries have been invited.

At the Armories a grand smoker will be held, under the auspices of the Naval Veterans' branch of the Canadian Legion. This smoker, it is believed, will be the biggest and most ambitious entertainment of its kind ever held here, and a rollicking good time is assured the visiting and Canadian naval men.

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

That was a black day in the history of Germany when the former Kaiser took supreme command of the ship of state and "dropped his pilot." The Iron Chancellor was a stern counsel, but he was an experienced and wise statesman. It was many years before the full fruit of the hasty act ripened, but ultimately Wilhelm Hohenzollern ate the fruit and discovered it was very bitter. From his asylum in Holland and from the turret in the castle of Doorn he must be watching the situation today in Germany and bitterly brooding over the consequences of his vaulting ambition.

An aged contemporary of Count Otto von Bismarck lies sick unto death in Prussia. Both Otto Bismarck and Paul Hindenburg were loyal and devoted servants of the Hohenzollern dynasty, the first in his capacity as a statesman, the latter as both soldier and statesman. Hindenburg has had a restraining influence upon the political adventurer who has usurped dictatorial powers in Germany. He had in an extraordinary degree the confidence of the people of Germany. But for that fact, it is difficult to estimate what might have happened in Central Europe. That commanding figure is about to pass into the realm of the unknown, and when its influence is lost, who shall say what the consequences may be to Germany and to the world? Since the days of Bismarck the course of Germany has been Hitler. After the days of Hindenburg, should Hitler attain the summit of his ambitions and become president, the statesmen of Europe will view with dire forebodings the possibilities of the future.

RELIEF FOR UNEMPLOYED

The conference at Ottawa between the Provincial Premiers and members of the Federal Government is still proceeding, and is not likely to finish its work for some time, but already something definite has been accomplished: there will be Federal relief for the unemployed as long as there is unemployment. The Dominion Government will find the money, and the provincial governments will be given the responsibility of distributing it. That is the logical course, for the agents of the provinces are in direct contact with the situation, and should know or be in a position to find out where the necessity of relief is most justifiable or most urgent.

The position of the Dominion Government is precisely as it was stated by the Prime Minister when the extent of the depression became apparent. Mr. Bennett stated then that although relief for the needy was constitutionally an obligation for the municipalities and the provinces, the government recognized its duty under the exceptional circumstances and would guarantee that no citizen of Canada would be allowed to suffer for lack of the necessities of life.

That obligation has been met, for when the fact was apparent that the municipalities and the provinces were not in a position to deal with the situation owing to the state to which their finances had been reduced, the Dominion stepped in, and relief was provided. Critics of Mr. Bennett and his government have steadily alleged, and still persist in alleging, that the Federal authorities have not done their duty. But millions of dollars for public relief have been distributed from the Dominion treasury. The municipalities and the provinces have "done their bit," but that share would have been utterly inadequate if it had not been generously supplemented by the Dominion. That is a matter upon which there surely should be a political moratorium, considering what has been done and what has been promised.

TAXATION PROBLEMS

Once again we hear the old phrase about broadening the basis of taxation—and it does not sound so sweet in the ear as The Old Refrain. The municipalities want the basis of taxation broadened for their benefit. The provinces want the basis of taxation broadened for their benefit—and there is a united cry for the Dominion to undertake the difficult and delicate operation. If the taxpayer were consulted he might suggest that the burden of taxation instead of being broadened be lightened. No one seems to think of any such process as that. Reading ministerial utterances, the trend of the times seems to portend increased taxation rather than lower taxation. The only government which has given any thought to the possibility of lower taxation is the new government of Ontario. Mr. Mitchell Hepburn in opposition and fighting the forces of Mr. Henry Clay, declared that if given the power he would reduce the provincial expenditures by half. That was a big undertaking, and it is being undertaken by the simple process of discharging many provincial employees suspected of being infected by the virus of Toryism and installing in their places persons sound in the Grit political faith. The good old boom times have not yet come back in Ontario; but the good old political times have come back with a bounce. For a considerable period following the installation of a National Government at Ottawa a truce was declared between the militant political forces of Conservatism and Liberalism; but we fear the new system was never nationally popular. In the good old political times the people of all the provinces of Canada east of the Prairies fairly revelled in party politics. Politics was the general subject of discourse during the secular days of the week, and there is a belief that after the services of the sanctuary on Sundays and in the intervals between "protracted meetings," the iniquities of the Grits and the Tories provoked almost riotous debates.

The birth of new political parties, beginning with the "unwieldy, unnumbered and ununsung" Farmers' Party in Ontario, led by the far from illustrious Premier Drury (who is suspected of having recanted and renewed his oath of allegiance to the Liberals since the success of Mr. Hepburn), and possibly ending with the forces of so-called Progressive governments, seemed to portend that politics in Canada never could be the same again—that the old parties had lost their grip and never could come back. But a change has come over the spirit of the political dream since the dispersion of the long established Conservative political forces of Ontario by the sensational defeat of the Henry government, an event which was expected, because the Conservative administration had been in power for nearly thirty years and was suffering not only from ineptitude in leadership, but from the natural force known as dry rot.

A similar fate befel a Liberal Ontario government which had been in power under various leaders beginning with Sir Oliver Mowat. It is the fate of all governments under democratic institutions that they cannot go on forever. Premier Hepburn is a political hero for a moment, but under any other leader the result would have been the same. When popular opinion is aroused by any grievances, such as allegations of incompetence and corruption in high places and the high cost of government, there is no force which can stay its wrath.

The political revolutionaries have had their day in Canada, and it appears as if the "old party lines" are in process of restoration. The Liberals, whose ranks had been torn asunder by passionate appeals of apostles of new doctrines, are reuniting, cheered by a belief that what has happened to the Henry government of Ontario will happen to the Bennett government of the Dominion. But the Bennett government is not suffering from lack of efficient and aggressive leadership, while the leadership of the Federal Liberal party is weak and vacillating and has not the confidence of the party membership.

The public charge against all existing governments is that the cost of government is excessive and should be reduced. This popular grievance cannot be removed by broadening the basis of taxation, because ultimately all taxes, whether levied by the municipalities, the provinces or the Dominion, must be paid by the taxed. If there be a delusion that the burden of one section of the Dominion can be some subtle process shifted and laid upon the backs of other sections, that dream might as well be abandoned. No responsible minister would be a party to such a trick.

INTERESTING; NOT PRACTICABLE

The very latest and the most interesting suggestion is a political moratorium. Probably a better name would be a political armistice. The suggestion came from a former editor of The Kingston Standard-White, the editor of the Toronto Mail and Empire printed it, and the editor of The Winnipeg Free Press endorsed it. After that almost anything may happen, for The Mail and Empire has been a rather rigid political partisan, and The Manitoba Free Press has been rabid in its criticisms of Hon. R. B. Bennett and his economic policies and general political principles and a zealous advocate of radical movements of almost every kind. The only new movement The Free Press cannot tolerate is that of the C.C.F., which is somewhat remarkable, for the Canadian Co-Operative Commonwealth is the legitimate offspring of the farmers' parties, which until lately have been the pet political lambs of the great Manitoba Journal.

In this new and interesting matter the conscience of The Colonist is clear, for its political views always have been extremely moderate. It never, or hardly ever, has been extremely bitter in political defeat or extravagantly jubilant in political victory. It has always expressed the philosophical view that there is a tide in the affairs of men which rises and falls like the tides of the ocean. It has always realized that the victors of today may be defeated and in flight on another day. Its belief is that when a new government is elected to power that government should be given a chance to display its capacity for government, and that when criticism seems to be justified the critic should be reasonable in judgment.

But the proposal for a political moratorium will hardly meet with a great deal of favor in Ontario, where one party has achieved a great victory and the other suffered a smashing defeat. We doubt, for example, whether Premier Hepburn will lend a favorable ear to the distinguished editors, discard the political axe and stop cutting off the heads of civil service employees and higher functionaries appointed by previous governments. Politicians are human, and human nature is the same today as it was long before the establishment of popular political institutions. Even the dictatorial powers conferred upon President Roosevelt have not prevented the application of the old political doctrine that to the victors belong the spoils.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE BRITISH NAVY
Sir—I hope to see many people at 10:30 a.m., on Sunday next, at St. Paul's Church grounds, Esquimalt Road, when a drum head service will be held.

Those who appreciate what the Old Country is doing to safeguard our interest, and to see for themselves our brothers from the Home land, who, if necessary, are willing to lay down their lives for us, what more can a man do? Don't let them think we are pikers. Come in thousands to greet them—send them back home telling them—know what the British Empire is still the core and the heart of this nation here.

YOUTH TO THE FORTH

Sir—At last, twenty years after the catastrophe of the Great War opened, the young people of the world are becoming articulate and saying: "We will eradicate this cancer, war, from the earth."

Members of the League of Nations Society in Canada, in company with its federated societies in forty-two other countries, should rejoice at this, for surely it is an outcome of the work of education, which they have been patiently carrying on for the past ten years.

These young people may perhaps not see quite eye to eye with us. Youth is generally radical and likes to do things in its own way. But they are against war and are prepared to work to prevent another war; therefore, they are our friends and brothers and we should help them all we can by turning out in strength at their demonstration on Saturday next, thus showing that we, old and young, of every constructive political creed, are all for the prevention of war.

CIVIC SALARIES

Sir—I hear there is some movement by some aldermen to increase the salaries of civic servants. Is this an election dodge? I have spoken personally to five civic employees, who have emphatically and unanimously said: "No, we do not expect any increase, especially at the present time. Considering at December, 1930, 2,331 taxpayers were in arrears, and at December, 1933, 4,388, an increase of 85 per cent. The city is tending to drive people out of the city into adjoining municipalities, where they don't seem to have any object in view: the confiscation of property through the owners not being able to pay exorbitant taxes, mostly for the benefit of civic undertakings."

NAVAL DEFENCE ON PACIFIC

Sir—Only recently we were warned over the radio by a very responsible Canadian newspaper that British Columbia was to be the cockpit of the next Pacific war, that there was someone in Canada who would object to proper naval defence on our Pacific shores against belligerent forces not actually at war with us, but who were on the shores for mere expediency. Are we not at least to try and keep them out?

It cannot truthfully be said that anyone in Canada is trying to make war on any nation, or why the hysterical outburst by anti-war and neutral bodies?

There is absolutely no reason for an anti-war parade in this peaceful city of Victoria. Neither is there any reason for a C.C.F. declaration about neutrality. Both exhibitions savor of superficial political propaganda which fools no one but those making the display. If proper precaution for the defence of Canada is to be made, and that of the British Empire, considered in the preparations for war on any nation, sensible Canadians will fall to see it.

LIFEBOAT ASSOCIATION

Sir—This letter is number sixteen of the series, which is being issued with the authority of the directors of the Vancouver Island Lifeboat Association. The last letter contained notes on the prevention of accidents to motor launches.

There is one item of a motor launch's equipment, which is of great importance, and this is the dinghy or small boat. A dinghy is really the private ferry between the launch and the nearest wharf or landing place. A proper dinghy is not built for speed but for carrying power and has a great beam in proportion to its length, and it should be steady when being towed. In the case of an explosion of gas in the engine room of the launch, when there is hardly time to even reach the lifeboats, there is always the dinghy to keep the crew and the goods afloat. Hence, it might be advisable to keep some special equipment in the dinghy, say a bailer, a lifebelt and a few life jackets. From this it follows that whenever a party of guests is being taken for an outing in a launch, a dinghy should always be taken, and it should be able to support (not carry) every person in the launch. For instance, when an accident takes place, the best boatman should board the dinghy and, with the two next people in the dinghy, could move it towards the nearest help, or the shore, and at the same time it would support

TAX RECEIPTS GAIN STEADILY

Margin of Prepayments Decreased—Lessened—More Arrears Paid

This year's prepayment of taxes is rapidly catching up on last year's record collection, while tax arrears receipts are far in excess of last year, figures for the month of July, released at the City Hall yesterday, revealed.

Up to July 28, a total of $500,104 had been collected under the pre-paid scheme, as compared with $490,927 for the same period last year. This is a decrease of approximately $9,177. However, earlier in the year the decrease was $50,000, so that the margin of difference has been reduced by nearly $40,000 during the last few months. (Yesterday, for instance, $12,000 was collected in one day on fully paid-up prepayments of taxes.)

Arrears of taxes collected so far amount to $92,042, as against $56,154 for the same period last year. This is an increase of $35,888, which almost offsets the reduction in prepayments of taxes.

Averaged Speed of 191 Miles an Hour For King's Trophy

Fastest Time Ever Recorded in British Air Classic Made by Prince George's Entry Under Trying Conditions

An average speed of 191 miles an hour, the highest ever recorded in this event, was set up in the King's Cup air race by E. W. Percival, in the "Mew Gull" airplane designed and built by himself, and entered by Prince George. Mr. Percival left Hatfield Aerodrome, which was the starting and finishing point for the race, during a heavy rainstorm, and he was forced to fly through rain over a great part of the 22 1/2 mile course of the first round. At one time the rain was falling so heavily that he had to "crab" the machine in order to blow the water off the windshield to enable him to see. He stated afterwards that his indicated air speed was about 212 miles an hour for a large part of the time, but that the weather caused him to make deviations from the course, and that these slightly reduced the average.

Flight-Lieutenant Comper, in his Comper "Streak," averaged 175 1/2 miles an hour, which was the second fastest time. But the handicapping was such that neither of these two machines qualified for the final of the race. Considering the small size of the engines, however, the speeds achieved by these machines are particularly noteworthy. It is to be remembered, too, that the first round of the King's Cup race was flown across country, so that pure racing machines could not be used, and Mr. Percival's 191 miles an hour average was done with an ordinary civil type of airplane which can be used for the carriage of express mails and similar high-speed work.

FINAL OF RACE

The final in the race was won by Flight-Lieutenant H. M. Schofield, in his S.T. 10 four-seater cabin monoplane, a craft embodying the monoplane wing and developed from the earlier S.T. 4 model. The improvements that differentiate it from its predecessor are interesting in that they show the trend of present-day "owner-pilot" demand.

The S.T. 10 cruises at 122 miles an hour and Flight-Lieutenant Schofield averaged 136 1/2 miles an hour for the first round of the race. The Sladeley Trophy, which is run concurrently with the King's Cup race, was won by Mr. L. Lipton, a private owner, with his Opey II de Havilland "Moth." Fourth place was gained by an airplane with side-by-side seating, the Blackburn B.2 Trainer, which averaged 114 1/2 miles an hour. This machine was flown very consistently, its average speed only varying by a small margin, by Flight-Lieutenant H. M. David.

Captain G. de Havilland, the designer and constructor, who was flying his new "Hornet Moth," was defeated by his handicap during the first day's racing, but he had the satisfaction of seeing one of his sons, O. R. de Havilland, bring in the T.K. 1 into fifth place. This machine was designed and built by students of the de Havilland Technical School, under the guidance of Mr. Langley. It was entered by Flight-Lieutenant O. W. Clapp.

DEMONSTRATED SPEED

While the ten airplanes which were to take part in the final of the race were being prepared for the start, the fast machines that had been eliminated by their heavy handicaps, gave a demonstration, flying Officer H. M. Schofield, who was selected one year as reserve pilot for the British Schneider Trophy team, flew the Percival "Gull," with —Photograph by Associated Screen News.

Opportunities in China Ship Subsidies Are Widely Discussed by Maritime Countries

SEVERAL years in China as an assistant Canadian trade commissioner have strengthened Bruce A. MacDonald's belief that there are great opportunities for Canadian produce and manufactures there. He sailed for Shanghai last Saturday aboard the Ss. Empress of Canada, and is shown aboard the ship with his sister, Miss Isabel MacDonald, who accompanied him from Vancouver to Victoria.

"Opey-Six" engine, with remarkable skill. He made vertically banked turns, at high speed, a few feet above the surface of the aerodrome, and he looped the machine from ground level. He also demonstrated that the machine could be brought down in a small space. He glided in slowly and, with the air brake in action, made a spot landing with an exceptionally short run.

Flight-Lieutenant Schofield, who was the pilot of the Schneider Trophy team. He was selected for the 1927 contest in Italy, which was eventually won by Flight-Lieutenant S. N. Webster, in a Supermarine monoplane, with Napier engine. Flight-Lieutenant Schofield did not fly in the Schneider Trophy race, but he proved during the practicing that he possessed marked piloting ability. After the King's Cup race the trophies and prizes were distributed by Lord Londonderry, Secretary of State for Air. Lord Gore, chairman of the Royal Aero Club, presided at the ceremony.

Vancouver Shipping

VANCOUVER, July 31.—Railway traffic is expected to begin crossing Second Narrows Bridge within a few days, as soon as signals are approved by the Railway Board of Canada.

Vancouver longshoremen today discharged cargo of Ss. West Camargo, and an active resumption of coastwise traffic is noted. Border-line vessels are carrying cargo long held up by the strike.

British Columbia Shipping Agencies, Limited, are shipping considerable lumber to Australia, several cargoes leaving before August 8.

Forty deep-sea vessels came to the Fraser River to New Westminster during the month of July. This is only two less than the high for year, set in January.

Great Britain Against Practice in Principle—Steamship Official Notes Big Increase in Passenger Travel on Great Oceans

VANCOUVER, July 31.—"Shipping throughout the world is emerging, slowly but surely, from the abnormal period of recent years. Idle world shipping has been reduced 33 per cent since January, 1933, and laid-up tonnage in British ports has decreased 46 1/2 per cent, compared with the same date in 1933," declared William Baird, steamship passenger manager of the Canadian Pacific, in an interview here, today.

Mr. Baird has been on the Coast for the past week examining his company's activities here. He journeyed to Victoria, Saturday, on the Empress of Canada, with J. J. Porter, steamship general passenger agent, Vancouver, and Captain E. Aikman, R.N.R., general superintendent. He will leave for the East tomorrow.

Discussing policy of world governments toward shipping, Mr.

Baird said France intends to aid shipping not assisted under existing French laws by a fund of 140,000,000 francs annually. The United States Administration proposes to reorganize its shipping subsidy agreements to secure greater efficiency.

AGAINST SUBSIDIES

"The National Government in Great Britain," Mr. Baird declared, "is against shipping subsidies in principle, but now has the thought of adopting subsidies after the failure of its efforts at the World Economic Conference in London, last year, to have all nations bring shipping subsidies within appropriate limits."

"The United States, shipping subsidies via agricultural subsidies for the treasury's largest subvention, and in the Old Country the shipping industry and agriculture are discussed simultaneously in connection with government financial aid."

"Government statistics of trade and commerce, recently issued by Canada, Great Britain, Australia and South Africa," Mr. Baird stated, "indicate that British countries tend to show economic improvement, while a general world-wide uplift in business is shown by the recent increase in passenger travel from Canada, the United States, Europe, the Orient, Australia and New Zealand. One outstanding feature is the advance in travel to Canada and the United States."

HIGHEST RATES

"During recent years," the steamship official said, "the effects of the depression were observed in the diversion of passenger traffic to the tourist and third classes. In 1934 a change set in, and passengers increasingly have been purchasing the greater comfort of first and second class. This is carrying larger passenger lists than ever before, despite the fact that her passenger rates are the highest on the route. Her five days Atlantic crossing, and her spacious, airy accommodations are apparent well worth the money, in the public's estimation."

"The British Government," Mr. Baird continued, "has just issued a comprehensive guide on travel conditions in Canada for the benefit of the British business man, and in this guide book British Columbia is fully and favorably mentioned."

VICTORIA NOT TO BE REPRESENTED

Publicity Bureau Is Not Sending Official to Ottawa to Discuss Advertising Programme

When the conference of representatives of the Canadian Association of Tourist Bureaus opens tomorrow at Ottawa, to discuss the emergency advertising campaign for Fall and Winter recreational sports throughout the Dominion, Victorians will not be represented. However, George I. Warren, commissioner of Victoria and Island Publicity and Information Bureau, has dispatched a telegram to D. Leo Dolan, director of the Dominion Tourist Bureau, urging the proposed advertising campaign feature the Canadian evergreen playground and the many natural attractions of this country.

Mr. Warren, in discussing the campaign, said Victorians have for the last ten years been co-operating with Vancouver in the Canadian drive, and also in the direct Canadian Prairie and California campaigns carried on through the Puget Sounders and British Columbian Associated.

Vancouver bureau is forwarding a brief by telegram to Ottawa, asking that British Columbia's attractions be featured in a proportionate amount of the advertising space used by the Dominion Government in the proposed campaign.

BUSINESS CODE TO BE SOUGHT

Merchants Will Approach Government for Standard of Practices

A standard of business practices for retail merchants in British Columbia that will eliminate some of the "unfair and unethical practices" is sought by the Provincial Government in a resolution that will be forwarded from last night's general meeting of retail merchants here, called to hear George R. Matthews, secretary of the British Columbia Board of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada.

The meeting also asked that the association urge upon the Premier that the standard of practices be set up as soon as possible.

This code embodies three principles, which also were endorsed by the meeting. The code in brief is:

- (1) That no retailer shall use advertising that is in any way inaccurate or misleading, or permit selling methods which tend to mislead or deceive the public, and that all advertising shall be specific.
- (2) That it shall be unfair practice to sell or offer for sale, or advertise to the public so-called loss leaders, which create a false sense of values in the public mind.
- (3) That it shall be unfair practice for a wholesaler or manufacturer, distributing merchandise through retail channels, to sell to the consumer direct.

Mr. Matthews spoke for an hour, relating matters that he brought out at the Stevens committee inquiry in Ottawa. He displayed misleading adds, and revealed how merchandise was sold at a loss to attract the public to certain stores, so that they might buy other articles.

Following the general meeting of merchants, the grocers and butchers met to discuss a specific complaint, and endorsed the action of the Vancouver merchants in asking the executive of the grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association to select a committee to wait upon the Attorney-General, placing before him the facts about the alleged misleading advertisement referred to.

All Records for Month Below Average—Total Rainfall Still High

The month of July was quite ordinary, meteorologically, despite the continued fine weather, the monthly weather report, issued last night by F. Napier Denison, director of the Dominion Meteorological Observatory, revealed.

Sunshine was thirty hours below average, the total hours of sun being 299 hours and 30 minutes. The mean temperature was 59 degrees, or 1 degree below average, while the rainfall was 24 of an inch, or 2 of an inch below average.

The only record above average reported was the precipitation for the year, which amounts to 15.66 inches, or 2.59 inches above average. The highest temperature recorded on July 23, when the mercury rose to 81. The lowest temperature in the standard screen was 49 on July 18, and 41 on the grass, on July 18.

Where are their wrappings? Not in basket with stems. Why not? "Where are the girl's street clothes? Or did she arrive in costume? Probably not. No coat, hat or handbag found."

"Is Oswald more scared than circumstances warrant?" "Why the long telephone wire?" (After this entry Sheridan had written the word "Explained.")

"What about the door knocker?" "Why did Wilcox get into our taxi? Why was he flustered?"

Alby, having studied the list, looked through narrowed eyes at Sheridan. Then he turned to Higgins. "Had time to make a thorough search?"

"Yeah. Also of the basement and the empty apartment upstairs. Didn't find a thing."

"Detective Higgins will leave somebody here with you for the night," Alby said, turning to the Cogges.

"Here," exclaimed Mrs. Cogges. "Here," Alby's tone, though quiet, silenced opposition. "But first we'll look round a bit."

He went through the apartment slowly, his eyes searching, appraising. In the bedroom he picked up the telephone and carried it into the bathroom. The cord was just long enough. Not an inch wasted. In one corner of the kitchen he found a broom handle into one end of which a rather heavy hook had been screwed.

"What's this?" he asked. "Mr. Cogges, who had been limping after him, explained. "To open windows from the top. Living on the first floor."

"Well, your hook won't wear out," said Alby. "Make it yourself?" "Yes. Got any objections?" Cogges said, belittlingly.

"None," Alby's voice remained courteous. He went back through the dining-room into the living-room. The body of the girl had been removed, and away with the laconic statement that the police had the matter well in hand.

Joe Harrod, short, with shiny dark hair, snapping eyes and a buttoned-up mouth, had started his career as a police stenographer, but his capacity for observation and deduction had advanced him, and for several years now he had been working closely with Assistant District Attorney Alby.

As Alby came back into the living-room, Harrod said, "Look at this peep-hole. A. A. That door knocker was just a blind. The hole's been closed up with putty. And here are some wire marks."

Alby looked, Cogges limping close behind him, demanded, "Let me see. It's my house!" And, as Alby stepped aside, Cogges stood on tiptoe to examine the hole. "The very idea!" he exclaimed indignantly.

"I suppose you want to see, too, Dinarid," Alby said. "Very much," Sherry replied. For, with the aid of putty and wire, the museum statuette could have been made into a door knocker—at least a temporary door knocker.

"The man who drilled that hole must have been about your height," said Harrod, at Sheridan, with only the slightest inclination of his head, scrutinized the hole.

"Just about," Sheridan frowned, eyes.

sorry again that he had entered the query about Wilcox on the list. For Wilcox was only a bit shorter than he. And it was absurd to suspect Wilcox.

It hadn't occurred to him to think he himself might be under suspicion. And when, a moment later, Inspector Higgins called to Leary, "Bring your kit in here and get these fingerprints. Begin with Dinarid," Sheridan started in amazement.

"Oh, no!" Adelaide cried, hurrying to his side.

But Sheridan realized at once that the finger-printing of everyone even remotely connected with the scene of the crime was a matter of routine. He smiled reassuringly at her, and held out his long, competent hands.

And while the finger-printing was going on, but a rather frightened Adelaide and two vociferously protesting Cogges had to submit to the process—Alby and Higgins consulted aside. Orders were given in an undertone, and one took the Cogges to the bathroom to headquarter.

At length Alby said, "Now we'll leave the Cogges to themselves. Except for Leary, who'll spend the night on the premises. But I want you all to come to my office tomorrow rather than this afternoon—at two-thirty."

"How about him?" Higgins nodded darkly at Sheridan.

"Mr. Dinarid won't run away. By the way, 'Dinarid,' meet me at the museum about ten, will you?"

"Certainly," Sheridan turned to Adelaide. "You must be dead, poor thing."

Adelaide replied with a wan smile. "Some coffee would help. It's now nearly five o'clock tomorrow morning. Why not come upstairs and have breakfast before you go?"

"That's a heartening suggestion," they went up the creaking stairs to the top floor, which was scarcely more than a framework for seven doors, including the one through which they had entered. Of the other six, three stood open—one leading into Adelaide's studio (she was an illustrator), one into her bedroom, and one into the kitchen. (The bath was off a little hall beyond the kitchen.) The three closed doors were closet doors. To get to her aunt's room, one could go either through the kitchen or go either independently from the outside hall, for the floor had originally been planned for two small apartments, but Adelaide and her aunt had had an opening cut between the two.

Adelaide went through the hall into the living-room. She turned on the light, walked to the couch and dropped her evening coat upon it, and then stood suddenly still.

"What is it, dear?" Sheridan asked.

"It's ridiculous," she said. "I'm just jittery. You don't suppose I know it's silly, but you don't suppose anybody could be in this apartment?"

"No, but we'll make sure. There's hardly a hiding-place in this room," he said.

But Adelaide kept close to him as he searched under the bed, in both Adelaide's quarters and her aunt's, in the closets and cupboards, and behind the larger pieces of furniture.

"Well, I'm glad it was only silliness," she said at last. They went into the kitchen. Adelaide reached for the coffee pot.

"In that lovely dress?" Sherry said.

"Get me a smock out of the cupboard," she replied.

He opened the cupboard door, looked at the tidy shelves and drew forth a folded smock. "This red and white one looks cheery, considering."

He stopped.

"Considering what? Here, hand it to me, slow-poke."

He drew forth the smock, and as he did so the four others on the shelf fell to the floor.

"You're a bit nervous yourself, Sherry. That was unlike your steady hand."

They got breakfast together and ate it in tired silence.

When they had finished, he rose. "I'll run along now, so that you can get some sleep. Unless—why, child, I believe you're still frightened."

"No, no," she protested.

"Darling little liar. Of course, with your aunt away. You go to bed, and I'll perch on your couch and see that nobody disturbs you."

"Nonsense, Sherry. It's not right. Something else. But let's let it go till tomorrow."

"I think I'll stay."

"Imagine the shock that would give the respectable Cogges! Anyhow, it's almost daylight. So run along and get some sleep yourself."

"All right, dear. If you really mean it."

He took her in his arms, but she turned her mouth away from him. With both hands on her shoulders, he held her away from him and looked, strainingly into her eyes. "I guess we'll have this out."

Native Son Won Laurels In New York

A most gifted native son of British Columbia who has won recognition in the art world of the great metropolis of New York City is Arthur Lloyd, composer and pianist, who, with his mother, has returned to spend several weeks of the summer months at the Pacific Coast. They have motored across the continent, and will spend most of their time here and in Vancouver, the latter city being their home before they went to the Eastern side of the continent to live.

Born in Vancouver, Mr. Lloyd received his early schooling there, and while a very young boy, showed unusual musical ability while studying with Frederick Chubb, well-known organist of that city. He was still in his teens when he went to New York, where he has won widespread recognition as a musician of outstanding gifts. He has just completed another busy season of recitals and has been the soloist at the Westchester Chamber Music Society and the Federated Women's Clubs at White Plains, New York State; the Sorosis Club and the Riverdale Orchestra, in New York City; the Scaradale Choral Society, and a benefit appearance under the auspices of the Daughters of the British Empire at Scaradale.

The alternate morning and afternoon periods for her lectures at the Summer School were arranged with the idea of withdrawing teachers as little as possible from any one individual class.

Garden Party Held By Parkville W.I.

The Parkville Women's Institute held a garden party, recently, on the beautiful grounds of "Woodlands," kindly loaned for the occasion by Mrs. C. Tryon. A glorious day and a large attendance made it a most successful affair, socially and financially. Mrs. Tryon, dressed as Charlie Chaplin, ran the game of horse racing, while Mr. Jack Tryon was in charge of the treasure hunt. Mr. Everest told fortunes and Tommy Tryon was in charge of clock golf. The Girl Guides had an excellent stall of home-made novelties and embroidery work, under the supervision of Mrs. Tuppman. A book and magazine stall was in charge of Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. Stone.

The prize for the best table decorations was won by Mrs. McKenzie, of Qualicum, and the prize for the best bowl of flowers was won by Miss Pettigrew. These competitions were looked after by Mrs. Leakey and Mrs. Tuppman.

Cafeteria tea was served on the lawn by Mesdames Tryon, Everest, Boscow, Rheimer, Goddard and Overy, assisted by Girl Guides. Guessing the weight of a fruit cake, made and led by Mrs. Blenkin, was won by Mrs. Davidson, of Qualicum, the weight being six pounds eleven ounces.

Russia Influences New Evening Wraps

HOLLYWOOD, July 31 (AP).—The movie ladies are saying farewell to evening coats. The stars who establish the trend in cinema styles say the cape is the thing today. Outstanding in smartness and simplicity is one of the newer types of evening wrap, worn by Gertrude Michael, over a gown of white satin. The combination of Russian sable and white satin alone announces that Hollywood's new trend is toward the height in subtle richness, which leads the evening mode away from glitter and frill. It should have a distinctly Russian mind so far.

Arion Club's Alfresco Concert Much Enjoyed

About 3,000 Persons Present at Veteran Male Voice Choir's Annual Out-Door Summer Benefit at Beacon Hill Park

A lovely Summer night, breathless in its calm, with the perfect alfresco setting, canopied by trees and the drifting clouds of sunset, made the most ideal conditions imaginable for the Arion Club's annual outdoor concert, given last night, at Beacon Hill Park. The Jubilee Hospital Senior and Junior Women's Auxiliary, in behalf of which the concert was given, will benefit appreciably from the collection that was taken up by a bevy of fifteen uniformed nurses, following a neat and very much to-the-point appeal by S. J. Drake, chairman of the Jubilee board of directors.

The choice of Beacon Hill Park as the site for this year's Arion Club benefit concert was a departure from the usual, but proved unmistakably popular, as was shown in the presence of fully 3,000 persons, one of the largest audiences that has ever been present for this event. The naturally fine acoustics of the spot were augmented for the occasion by the installation of amplifiers, which made it possible for those sitting even on the outermost edges of the audience to hear quite distinctly the most delicate refinements of melody. One particularly delightful instance of the carrying qualities of tone was heard in the Brahms "Lullaby," which, although most delicately and tenderly interpreted, was insistently demanded as an encore.

IN FULL FORCE

Singing about forty strong, the choir gave a very fine programme. The selection of material was excellent for popular as well as artistic reasons, and every item bore the marks of most careful preparation. Beginning with "Archery," "Winter Song" they gave a delightfully varied succession of fine choral works, ranging in character from the rollicking "Ho, Jolly Jenkin," by Sullivan, the rousing "Archery," by Thayer, and the full-toned, thoroughly masculine

"Rolling Down to Rio," of German, to the melodious "Lullaby," and melodiously tender "Sylvia," the melodious humors of "In Vocal Combat," where an unconsciously funny touch was injected by the loud honking of a duck on the nearby lake.

A splendid balance of tone was effected by the conductor, Herbert Kent, and Mrs. C. C. Wain, at the piano, gave her customary consistently fine support.

THE SOLOISTS

In several of the numbers, solo parts are given by the composer, and these were admirably assigned. Dr. Richard Felton took a very good position in front of the amplifier for his solo part in "Ho, Jolly Jenkin," and his voice rose firmly above the resonant choral tone that the other voices furnished. W. Tipper's basso was also heard to good effect in Bishop's "Mythical Van Duynck," and Thomas Kelway's dramatic sense gave the usual interest and significance to the tenor solo of the clever choral skit, "Italian Salad." Outstandingly fine was the singing of Fred Wright, one of the choir's most accomplished bass soloists, in Allister's "There's a Land," which is one of the most effective solo numbers the choir has ever included in an alfresco programme.

The programme ended with the ever-green favorite, "Soldiers' Chorus," from Gounod's "Faust," which brought an evening of very fine melody to a resounding conclusion.

What Today Means

"LEO"

If August 1 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m., and from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m., from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m., and from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

This August 1 should show indications that business for this month will be decidedly more encouraging than for the same period twelve months ago. If you exercise tactical consideration for a busy person's time, their appreciation may be shown in a substantial way. This day should prove an excellent one on which to plan any type of campaign or new enterprise. It might prove advantageous to give heed to the opinions expressed by others relative to business affairs. Care should be used in contracting monetary obligations, especially if collateral security is demanded in the negotiating of any form of contract. Deal of a speculative nature may be offered and the larger the return promised, the greater the loss may be, so it might be wise to be wary. The wise person will avoid being too insistent in pressing the acceptance of any form of invitation of a social nature. This August 1 may prove not over-auspicious for those inclined to make love, so you might find it good advice to watch your step.

If a woman and August 1 is your natal day, you may be agreeably surprised by an unexpected caller or letter. If you take a greater interest in some form of physical exercise or an out-door sport that is conducive to it, you may find it beneficial. You should exercise discretion in anything that could be construed as the first step in a love affair. If you are single or married, be careful not to give malicious gossip the chance to fester their tongues. Happiness should result in marriage if you accord your husband the same treatment you expect of him. The child born on August 1, when it reaches its teens, may go through a phase of being very argumentative and headstrong, but a little firmness and reasoning will correct these two objectionable traits. Truthfulness and reliability will make this youngster dependable and lovable.

If a man, and born on August 1, you may find if you overcome any inclination to be indifferent that life will be pleasanter, not only for yourself, but for your family and friends. Gentility is most essential, and it may hasten you on the road to success if you will cultivate it. Married life is the best for a man of your temperament, if you will display some sentiment and make up your mind to be cheerful.

FAVORS REDUCTION OF NAVAL FORCES

The Premier was asked whether he meant Japan would ask Great Britain and the United States to reduce naval armaments to the level of Japan.

"It is not in my mind to expect such radical changes so suddenly," he replied.

EXPECTS GOOD RESULTS

The Premier expressed confidence that good results will come from the 1935 Naval Conference.

"I cannot believe the conference will fail," he said. "I fully believe it will be successful. Personally, I sincerely want it to succeed."

DEPENDS ON JAPAN

LONDON, July 31 (AP).—An authoritative British source said today that a naval disarmament now depends on Japan.

Commenting on the statement of Premier Keioku Okada of Japan that the most heavily armed nations should reduce, this source represented the British Government as believing the discussions have reached a point where everything now depends on what the Japanese attitude will be.

Ambavalia originally was a religious procession round the land of the Early Roman community, whose purpose was to purge the crops from evil influences.

When the Allies reached Salonika during the Great War, the French franc had depreciated to considerably less than the value of the Greek drachma, and the French troops had to pay in francs for a time, considerably more in francs than the prices marked in drachmas.

"The French G.O.C., on hearing this, was extremely angry and issued an edict that he decreed the franc was equal to the drachma, and if anybody said it was not he had better look out. As a consequence next week most of the local shopkeepers were in prison for a time, after which the franc did equal the drachma and certainly nobody seemed a penny the worse."

Rosicrucian Parley Held In San Jose

Nearly 600 AMORC Rosicrucians from throughout the world gathered at their sixth annual convention, held recently, in San Jose, California, to witness the dedication of their science building, founded on idealistic lines, relative to the Rosicrucian convention, having represented, there, the membership of this district.

Sir Francis Bacon, 1600 A.D., father of the present school of science, conceived in his novel, "The New Atlantis," a university whose object it would be to scientifically investigate the hypotheses and theories advanced by learned men, which, because of their fantastic nature, were considered "beyond the realm of religion or conventional science."

AN EARLY OFFICER

The Rosicrucians, states Miss McKenzie, recognize Bacon as an early officer of their order, and thus their design of building of ornate Egyptian design and housing chemistry, light, physics, radio and photographic laboratories will be devoted to original research into strange phenomena.

An important feature of the convention was the conferring on Dr. H. Spencer Lewis, Imperator of the Order, a Cross of Honor, by the Washington representative of the distinguished service rendered the association in its war on crime.

The features consisted of philosophical addresses and lectures by Rosicrucian authorities on outstanding spheres of science. The delegates witnessed, at the close of the convention, a demonstration of the geometrical designs that sounds came when translated into light.

material witnesses. They are Peter Leslie, eighteen, son of Harry Leslie, and Fred Hastings, thirty.

FIRST IN CANADA

The case is described as the first of its kind in Canadian crime records.

The five men were taken into custody by Provincial officers.

First report of the alleged plot against Mr. McLean, a director of several large corporations, was received July 23, by Chief Inspector William Stranger, head of the Provincial Police criminal investigation department.

The Leslies were arrested at their tourist camp, while Wood was arrested at his residence in New Toronto, when Hastings also was understood to have been taken into custody.

Grandfather Frog Gets a Ride
—By THORNTON W. BURGESS—"Chugurum," said Grandfather Frog, "I wish I had long legs like Peter Rabbit, or could swim as fast as Little Joe Otter. I wish—""Why Grandfather Frog, I am surprised. I didn't know you ever wished for anything you haven't got. What's the matter now?" It was Jerry Muskrat who spoke.Grandfather Frog hitched himself around on the big, green lily-pad on which he spends each sunny day and looked at Jerry lazily floating in the water."Jerry Muskrat," began Grandfather Frog solemnly, "it's a long time, a very long time, since I was young; do you know that?"

Jerry nodded.

"I'm not so spry as I used to be,
and it's a long time since I've seen the world. If I was as young as you are, Jerry Muskrat, I wouldn't be sitting here on a lily-pad all day long watching for foolish flies.
I'd—""Grandfather Frog is old and wise and views the world with bulging eyes;
If I knew half as much as he,
I'm sure I'd quite contented be."Grandfather Frog turned and looked over to the Big Rock where the voice came from. There sat Little Joe Otter grinning down at him."You're right, Little Joe Otter.
You're just exactly right. I'm ashamed of myself," said Grandfather Frog.Jerry Muskrat had an idea. "Hi, Little Joe Otter. Come down here," he called.Splash! Little Joe Otter was in the water. When he came to the surface he was right alongside of Jerry, and for a few minutes they whispered and giggled. Then Jerry called to Grandfather Frog: "How would you like to take a ride around the Smiling Pool?" he asked."Nothing would suit me better," replied Grandfather Frog.Next Story: Grandfather Frog

WAIT ON FRANCE

They were waiting in the light of the fact that Germany had not yet begun mobilization. It was not known that she had delivered an ultimatum to Russia, that if RussiaFrance's answer as to whether she would remain neutral or not—the German Ambassador to France,
Baron von Schoen, told Premier Viviani of France, that if France declared neutrality, Germany must have temporary possession of France's border fortresses as guarantees. Viviani's answer was obvious; but the German Ambassador did not ask for his passports. This might have started French mobilization instantly, giving France an advantage.At noon the time limit to Russia expired. The Caar of All the Rus-sias had made the ultimate decision which was to bring him the death of a rat shot in a cellar. The Kaiser signed the order for mobilization which was to consign him to saw wood as an exile in Holland. But with Russian crowds and German crows cheering and soldiers rushing eagerly to their stations, it looked to both Caar and Kaiser as though they were in for greater power and glory when they dictated peace terms.

FRANCE MOBILIZES

At 3:40 in the afternoon France ordered mobilization. Declarations of war became only an official detail.
The last whispers of the hoarseFrench Reservists, Called Out in the General Mobilization of Troops That Followed Germany's Demand for a Neutrality Guarantee.died not stop mobilization by noon this day, August 1, then Germany would begin mobilization, while Russia had secretly begun it. And it was not known that Germany had demanded France's answer by one that afternoon as to whether she would remain neutral in a Russo-German war.The statesmen still had the morning hours for their final efforts before the generals took the crisis out of their hands. Sir Edward Grey and Prince Lichnowsky, the German Ambassador in London, had a highly historical misunderstanding in the use of words that morning.
Grey meant to ask him whether Germany would remain neutral toward Russia if France kept out of a war. Lichnowsky thought Grey asked him whether Germany would attack France if France left her and Austria to deal with Russia. Lichnowsky had an affirmative answer from Berlin to that question, but it did not apply to Germany leaving Russia and Austria to fight it out between them.All the great powers were in except Italy and Britain. Italy was a member of the Triple Alliance with Austria and Germany. In her plans for mobilization, France had to look towards the maritime Alps as well as toward the Rhine. She might have to fight on two fronts. So it was wise to make her mobilization plans, which could not be changed in their elaborate detail after war began, to include the Italian danger.Italy had looked on as a spectator at the crisis, ready for any suggestion of mediation. Now she had to make her decision. She, too, was concerned about the British action.
Her peninsular coast line was exposed to superior British sea-power.
Should Britain join the Allies, their victory seemed inevitable. If she did not, Italy could hold her hand, while she safeguarded the lives of her sons, until her weight in the balance should count. She announced that she would be neutral.Italy's decision gave France a breath of relief. It concentrated her suspense on the sixth of the Great Powers, which had been responsible for keeping the now prostrate balance of power secure for forty years. It was as though a universal French prayer appealed to the ancient enemy across the Chan-

CABINET DIVIDED

Again the British Cabinet met, while the British public waited on the action of the statesmen, and they waited on the dispatches, secret as well as private. The Cabinet was in two factions still, that led by Lloyd George still for no belligerent step. Grey had replied yesterday to France that British treaty rights had not yet been involved in the war crisis.But Britain was signatory of a treaty which Prussia, among the other powers of the time, had signed in 1839, guaranteeing Belgium as an "independent and perpetually neutral state." If Belgian neutrality were broken, that became a concern of Britain. It was reported that the German army might pass through Belgium to attack France in flank. It was now known that the German plan of mobilization was to the westward, leaving Austria to bear Russia's initial onslaught. The Cabinet finally decided to serve notice of this danger on Germany and ask her for a pledge.Prince Lichnowsky, the German Ambassador, asked Grey if Britain would remain neutral if Germany agreed not to invade Belgium. Grey did not think he could give a promise of neutrality on that condition alone.The Cabinet adjourned without further action. Germany could be Myatt received a broken right ankle when his spikes caught as he slid into home plate in the third inning of the second game. He will be unable to play again this season, and his injury leaves the Indians with only one catcher, Frankie Yank.

PORTLANDER AND TACOMA PRO IN TIE

Jimmy Johnson and Emory Zimmerman to Play-Off for Open Golf Crown

BY FRANK O. GORRIE
INGLEWOOD GOLF CLUB, SEATTLE, July 31 (AP).—In a dizzy breath-taking last hole finish, Jimmy Johnson, tall, handsome professional at the Allenmore Golf Club, Tacoma, tied Emory Zimmerman, pint-sized pro at the Alderwood Golf Club, Portland, for the Washington State open golf championship today, to send the two sharpshooters into an eighteen-hole play-off tomorrow afternoon.

Two strokes behind the Portlander as he teed off at the last hole, Johnson laid out a 260-yard drive, spanked a spoon eight feet from the cup, and boldly ran down the gallery, to give him a seventy-two hole total of 290, the same card previously posted by Zimmerman. In his four rounds over the Inglewood course, Johnson scored 72, 73, 74, 74. Zimmerman tallied 73, 70, 76, 71.

While the leaders were putting on their whirlwind finishing performance, Neil Christian, Yakima professional and front runner in the meet from the start, cracked badly to wind up with 292, even par, and third place money. Christian's blow-up was tragic. Starting the last nine strokes ahead of the field, the former Portland professional, who three times had won the open championship, dropped strokes to par at the sixty-fourth and sixty-fifth holes when he drove into the rough and three-putted, and then took a wild six at the sixty-sixth, chipping back and forth over the green three times before he could get on.

Christian scored 69, 72, 74, 76. Another upset occurred in the amateur division when Harry Glivan, Seattle, nosed out Bud Ward, Olympia, in the last nine. Empire's Athletes Are Received by the Prince

Contingent of 500 Welcomed at St. James Palace by Heir to Throne—Meet to Open Saturday at White City Stadium—Canadians Will Lead

By THOMAS T. CHAMPTON
LONDON, July 31 (CP).—The flower of the Empire's manhood, 500 strong and so un-Olympian as to revel in each other's company, went to St. James Palace, today, to be received by the Prince of Wales.

The heir to the throne welcomed athletic stars from Scotland and Ireland and Wales, Canada, British Guiana, Trinidad and Newfound-land, from far-away Australia and New Zealand, and from South Africa.

Four days before they invade White City Stadium and Wembley for the second British Empire Games, the all-British forces took time off from training. In a body they moved on the Prince's town residence and shook hands with the smiling royal householder, who will be absent in France when the games are on.

In flag-decked White City on Saturday, R. L. Howland, England's leading shot-putter, will take the oath of allegiance on behalf of all competitors. He will stand on a dais, his right arm raised and facing flags of all Empire countries, when he repeats the oath.

Thrilling Decision Over Frankie Shields in Four Strenuous Sets Decides Trophy in Favor of Great Britain for Second Straight Year—Austin Goes on to Defeat Sidney Wood

The set will go down in cup history as one of the most exhausting and exciting ever played. At one stretch service was broken eight which decided straight times.

Remember When

(Twenty-Five Years Ago)
 Joe Tyler, the Spokane crack, created the men's singles British Columbia title from B. Seargers, local ace, yesterday, at the Belcher Street courts, after a titanic struggle, which went the full five acts. It was the most exciting match witnessed during the tournament. The scores were: 3-6, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

The British Columbia Amateur Athletic Union will hold its first annual track and field championships at Oak Bay track next Saturday afternoon, and some good competition should be the result.

There will be entries for the championships from Nanaimo, Ladysmith, Duncan, Alberni and many other of the Island towns where there are any athletes of any real merit.

The Y.M.C.A. and J.B.A.A. track teams are attracting the most of the attention in the meet, as both local clubs are entering crack teams for the championships.

The J.B.A.A. will have a strong team in the field. In the 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes Sid Winby will be the strongest representative for the Bays, while Sears and Parker will be in the half-mile.

John D. Marsh, holder of the world's professional marathon record, who is to race Alex Rowan, of Nanaimo, at the Box Athletic Park, here, one week from Tuesday, will arrive in town tomorrow afternoon and go into rigid training for the big race.

In the presence of one of the largest crowds ever in attendance at the Willows track, and capably ridden by Aeneas, Barney Oldfield, the four-year-old son of Moreno, and owned by Gentry & Dunlap, captured the Exposition Selling Stakes, one of the big features of the meeting, and besides beating a good field of the all-aged division, reeled off the one mile and a sixteenth in the first time of 1:49.5, which is one-fifth of a second better than the record made by Fantasio.

But to him into a sense of security, the French President twice conferred the Legion of Honor upon the chief spy. ROYALS ELIMINATED FROM DOMINION CUP SERIES

Coast XI Outplays Opponents but Drop Deciding Match, 1-0

New Westminster Fades From Connaught Cup Soccer Series by Losing to Prince Albert—Royals Pass Up Enough Goals to Win Two or Three Fixtures—Spencer Hurt

SASKATOON, July 31 (CP).—Royals, who were playing a wide margin, but securing an invaluable counter which their opponents could not match, Prince Albert City Reds tonight qualified to meet United Weston, of Winnipeg, in the Western Canada soccer final of the Connaught Cup by defeating New Westminster Royals here, 1-0.

Tonight's game was the third between the two teams since Saturday, when Royals defeated the present Western champions by 2-1. Monday night, the team which last year forced Toronto Scotland to three games before admitting defeat, came right back and courageously gained a 2-0 victory. Tonight, again fighting hard, Prince Albert advanced to the final bracket in the Western playoffs.

Displaying little good football, but exhibiting a sterling defence, the Saskatchewan champions got their goal after thirty minutes of the second half had passed. Proudfoot, Reds' centre half, was credited with the goal when he rushed in to boot home the leather after Sanford, Royals' goalie, had failed to pick up the ball cleanly.

Royals missed enough chances in the first half to sail away two football goals. Time after time the ball went begging in front of the net, and when their forwards did get it they shot wide or the Prince Albert goalie was right on the job. At that, Milne had few hard ones to handle in the Prince Albert goal.

GILLESPIE STARS

Once again Gillespie was the star for Prince Albert. He kicked well, but a cross wind broke up repeated attacks by the Royals' front line. He was ably assisted by his halves, especially by Dundar, left half, who was a source of worry to invading forwards all night. Milne in goal was again sound.

There was little to it in the first half. Royals wanted to a well-calculated attack time after time, but could not press home their advantage and only twice did the Prince Albert forwards, who through the game showed few glimpses of good football, threaten.

The first half ended with no score, as Prince Albert backs had a busy and exciting forty-five minutes.

After the resumption Prince Albert improved, an injury to Spencer, Royals' inside left, disorganizing the Coast team, and their forwards got together better, but they seemed to have little idea of getting goals, while the Royals were held up by the sturdy defence of Gillespie and Brady.

LOVE MARKER

Then came the break. McMillan secured the ball on the right wing, and carrying it towards goal, put in a weak shot which Sanford, who all night had been safe on the few he had been called upon to handle, failed to gather up, and in the resulting scramble Proudfoot, Reds' centre half, dashed in to put the Royals again took up the attack but seemed to lack light as the Prince Albert team, encouraged, improved and made two or three pretty rushes into enemy territory.

The Prince Albert goal was not too badly endangered in the second half, and Royals were unable to get near goal in the last ten minutes, while Reds' defenders kicked into touch at every opportunity.

Defeating Sidney, 8-1, yesterday evening, at the Royal Athletic Park, Eagles clinched third place in the Twilight Baseball League standings, to enter the post-season play-offs for the A. E. Humphries Cup, symbolic of the league championship.

The first game of the play-off series will be played at Sidney, Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, with the Eagles battling the Sidney aggregation.

Getting to the offerings of Blunt, Sidney hurler, as early as the first inning, Eagles drove in two runs in this attack and gained a lead which they never relinquished. They drove Blunt to the showers in the third inning with successive bingles, and "Lefty" Morgan was rushed to the rescue, but fared just as badly as his predecessor.

With Shouldice went the distance for the winners and allowed them four scattered hits.

Score by innings:

Sidney..... 0 0 0 1 0 0 1
Eagles..... 8 0 0 0 0 0 0

Batteries: Blunt, Morgan and Lines; Shouldice and Woodford.

Local Riders Attend Rally At Long Beach

Victoria motorcycleists in company with other riders from Washington, Oregon, Idaho and different parts of the province, attended the annual rally of riders of the Pacific Northwest during the week-end, at Long Beach, and competed in some of the events.

Local riders who made the trip were Reg Shanks, Bill Espley, George Andrews, Hector McNeil and Reg Raby. Espley was the only one taking prize. He won third place in the miniature tourist trophy event, which is a time test over a scheduled road course.

Some thrilling races were seen on the sands of Long Beach, and in the outstanding event of the day, a Harley Davidson machine registered the highest speed of 104 miles an hour.

Virginia Vane Says:

PASSING POPULARITY

Dear Virginia Vane: I live in a large city, am considered attractive and have had many good times—more than my share. I have had several proposals and always have a number of men anxious to take me out.

However, I am often worried because I seem to drift from one crowd to another. I never lack for admirers but have no friends from last year. One year I seem to be in with a certain crowd, and the next, I am playing around with quite a different bunch. My life is never dull but sometimes I wonder what the future holds for me. There is bound to come a time when I shall get tired of changing. I wonder now sometimes whether I am as happy as I ought to be.—Meg.

Sounds as though you'd just been romping through life taking everything you could get. Meg, and giving absolutely nothing. Oh, you've given a few bright smiles of course and you've handed out some pretty charming lines, and you've taken the trouble to call up one or two boy friends when you've wanted to see them. But what have you actually given of real friendship and sympathy?

I suggest—maybe I'm wrong—that you've been rather quickly bored with other people's troubles. Perhaps on first meeting a man you've hung attentively on his every word and even murmured sympathetically over his failures—but once he's been won you've turned a deaf ear to his confidences. You've interrupted or turned away or instructed him to snap out of it.

You never remember after that to ask about his job, nor to call him up about his sore throat, nor to invite him to come over to see you because you know he's having a little trouble at home.

You haven't remembered to go slow on expensive entertainment when you know he's just received a big cut. You've never suggested an early evening because you felt that he ought to be up next morning in time for a specially hard day's work. You haven't shown any symptoms of worry over the fact that he's smoking or drinking too much.

No, you've just smiled sweetly, danced beautifully, talked incessantly and somehow got by—for a while. Maybe you've been fascinating enough to hold your man's affections for a while. Maybe your popularity has given you sufficient glamour to keep a suitor enthralled.

But the day comes when some nice warm-hearted sweet young thing smiles up at your own special admirer and says huskily, "you must take care of yourself, John." And suddenly you, the bright, the metallic, play-fellow are discovered to be a pretty hard proposition compared to this nice, understanding little thing who obviously knows how to care for a man in a big way. So you lose that amiable beau. And before you have time to bemoan his loss, another has taken his place.

Thus, gradually you shed one crowd of admirers and start afresh. None of the old beaus ever come back. Perhaps they would, even if they'd got over their crushes on you—but you see you haven't anything to offer. Once their infatuation for you has died, they're faced with the fact that they have no part in your life. Their interests, their hopes and dreams are no concern of yours, and they realize it, abruptly. That's why you haven't any old men friends.

And, of course, you haven't any real girl friends. It takes real work for a popular girl to make friends with her own sex. The other women are instinctively arrayed against her unless she has the disposition of an angel—and a real capacity for friendship. They eye her warily. They do not welcome her into their circle with eager cries.

Therefore, the belle of the ball must make some effort if she's to win any chums at all. She must learn to take an interest in them and to show it. She must never be lacking in sympathy. She must always remember the little kindnesses and acts of thoughtfulness which show a warm, sympathetic nature.

She cannot afford to be careless with the other girls. She can't toss their interests aside as lightly as she does the affairs of her suitors. She must show herself to be concerned with something other than her own business.

I wonder, Meg, just how much of this fits you. Haven't you been apt to disregard everybody else except superficially? Haven't you imagined that a smile and a winning manner would conceal the total indifference you felt toward everyone except yourself? And aren't you finding out now that friends are valuable—and old friends, the most valuable of all—cannot be held with pretty manners and a snappy line?

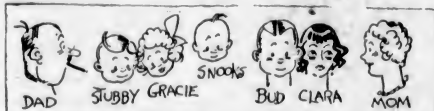

Think it over. You'll have to do some constructive friendship-making if you're to ward off future loneliness. I'm sure once you've understood yourself and found the secret of your failure in your own self-centeredness that you'll be able to deal with your problem effectually.

Dick: Thanks for your letter. Glad that you have taken the fatal step and found it so much less fatal than you expected. Now all you've got to do is shut your mind to those other possibilities and stick to the job in hand. You'll be all right so long as you don't allow your imagination too much play. Good luck to you.

A tramp entering the gates of a said: "My good man, are you so hungry that you are obliged to eat grass?" "Yes, ma'am," replied the tramp. The old lady who lived in the villa. "Oh, dear," said the lady. "Come noticing the pathetic performance, round to the kitchen door, the grass came out on to the doorstep and is longer there."
